

Home Is Where You Are

LYRICS BY KRISTIN FESSLER

Verse 1

I've wandered through those cities
That glitter in the night like glass.
I slept under too many ceilings
I knew would never last.
I borrowed a thousand places,
But nothing ever stayed.
Every moment beside you
Felt beautifully made.

Chorus

I don't need a compass.
I don't need the stars.
I don't need a map,
'Cause home is where you are.
I don't need directions.
I don't care how far.
'Cause home is not a place.
Home is where you are.

Verse 2

Home was always a fixed thing.
Now it moves on through.
All the miles fade away.
Every road leads back to you.
If home is where the heart is,
Doesn't matter how far I roam.
I'll find my way back to you.
Your love calls me home.

Chorus

I don't need a compass.
I don't need the stars.
I don't need a map,
'Cause home is where you are.
I don't need directions.
I don't care how far.
'Cause home is not a place.
Home is where you are.

Bridge

I'm not lost.
I'm no longer alone.
You're the love that I've never known.
Everywhere with you
Feels like home.

Final Chorus

I don't need a compass.
I don't need the stars.
I don't need a map,
'Cause home is where you are.
I don't need directions.
I don't care how far.
'Cause home is not a place.
Home is where you are.

Outro

Home is where you are.

A song about discovering that home is not a destination — it's the person who makes every road feel like a return.
